

Odette M. Houghton, MD, FASRS

Odette M. Houghton, MD, FASRS, is Chair of the Department of Ophthalmology and an Associate Professor at Mayo Clinic in Scottsdale, AZ, specializing in vitreoretinal surgery and ocular oncology. She completed her residency at the Kellogg Eye Center, University of Michigan, and fellowship at Wayne State University's Kresge Eye Institute. Prior to joining Mayo Clinic, she was an Associate Professor and Fellowship Director for vitreoretinal surgery at the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill. She is also a past president of the North Carolina Society of Eye Physicians and Surgeons and a co-founder of the North Carolina Retina Club. Dr. Houghton's clinical interests include a wide range of retinal conditions, and she has contributed to the field through her involvement in clinical trials and publications. She is actively involved in professional societies, including serving as Chair of the Federal Affairs Committee for the American Society of Retina Specialists. At Mayo Clinic Arizona, she has helped establish the retina and ocular oncology services.